Are you looking for fresh innovative ideas to nurture positive relationships with, and between, your students?

LIFE-SUCCESS activities and conversations between teachers and students; practical strategies to build healthy mindsets

For Educators (including Pre-Service Teachers & Relief Teachers)

Friday, 19th January 2018

Most us learn that there's a lot more to teaching than simply imparting quality curriculum or academic skills to students. Positive and thoughtful relationships contribute to better learning as well as helping everyone to feel happier, more malleable and cooperative.

This workshop contains an assortment of ideas, lessons and conversations to reach out and build relationship with students of all ages. Offered playfully and open heartedly, the activities can enrich the atmosphere of care and trust you are intending to build. They are grouped into three categories.

1. Designs to kick start relationships with students at the start of the year
2. Activities to inspire group unity and maintain it
3. Ideas to restore damaged relationships

To finish up with let's take a 'personal reflection' to strengthen your emotional health throughout the year;

1. ACTIVITY - questionnaire: are you still a part of the solution?
2. ACTIVITY - what does your 'mental health care plan' look like?
