

PwC's Skills for Australia

Inclusion of People with Disability in VET Cross Sector Project

Working with industry, PwC's Skills for Australia is conducting research to understand the future skill and knowledge needs to better support people with disability across vocational education and training, employment, and customer service.

Consultations are being held around Australia. This is your opportunity to contribute to removing barriers to accessibility and ultimately improving the inclusion of people with disability in society.

Register your interest here!

PwC's Skills for Australia

Inclusion of People with Disability in VET Cross Sector Project

Who do we want to hear from?

PwC's Skills for Australia is seeking input from a diverse audience, including: employers, industry representatives, peak bodies, disability support providers and other service providers, trainers and training providers, recruiters, employees, students, subject matter experts, academics and researchers. Anyone who is passionate about improving vocational education training and has an interest or expertise in supporting people with disability is encouraged to participate.

How can you contribute to the project?

There are a number of ways you can contribute: attend an open forum, attend an interview, or complete an online survey. We expect high demand so please be sure to register early for a consultation. To register for a consultation session, click here.

Attend an Open Forum

These will be roughly 3 hour sessions held in major capital cities around Australia in February 2018.

Attend an Interview

These will be roughly 1 hour interviews, conducted in person, via teleconference or videoconference from January to March 2018.

Complete an Online Survey

A survey will be available from February to March 2018.

If you have any questions, contact Sharni Burstin at sharni.m.burstin@pwc.com.